Welcome

Having reached its 29th edition, the Sinergie Italian Journal of Management's Annual Conference is a well-established scientific meeting that brings scholars from the field of management together to present and discuss their research in a collaborative and friendly environment. Starting this year, the conference is co-organized with SIMA (Società Italiana di Management) the Scientific Society of Italian professors of management. Sinergie and SIMA are increasingly working together and their common aim is to foster the contribution of Italian scholars to the international debate on management, as well as to enhance the journal's international standing.

Conference theme and objectives

The purpose of the conference is to discuss an alternative perspective for management that makes sense of the complex and dynamic reality of business and societal phenomena. This perspective is designed to escape the positivistic, paradigmatic view of science by drawing on the ontological assumption that management is, above all, a matter of value co-creation that takes place in a multiple, constructed, and socially embedded reality.

In order to grasp the emerging complexity, recent studies on markets, consumer behaviors, strategy and organization are rooted in the sociology of science and exhorts business and economics studies to move beyond the myopia of the neoclassical view of reality as objectively given and known.

There is a call for management theories and practices based on a social domain of science where social practices - the ordering of human activity across space and time - make the world continuously constructed and reconstructed by individuals and groups in interaction with non-humans (physical environment, objects) to (co)-create mutual value.

In this sense, new conceptualizations can lead researchers, managers, decision makers, practitioners and students to a deeper understanding of management in today's ever-changing societal and business context.

Theoretical contributions, empirical analyses, experiences and reflections developed from the perspective of management studies and aimed at evaluating patterns to co-create value constitute the main focus of the conference.

Conference framework

The conference theme will be debated during alternating plenary and parallel sessions between Thursday June 15th and Friday June 16th, 2017.

The plenary sessions will be based on the contribution of reputable academic and professional figures who will take part in plenary debates as keynote speakers, discussants and interviewees. Prof. Gianmario Verona, Rector of Bocconi University will be one of the keynote speakers.

Moreover, there will be one or more sessions dedicated to extended abstracts during which the participants will be able to present their research projects and benefit from the comments and suggestions of the chairs and other participants.

The papers and extended abstracts may be submitted in Italian or English (edited either in British or American English).
